Businesses Dependent on Races Say Kricks

by Rick Ollie

It's more than a few race car drivers running their cars as fast as they can get them to go. It brings in more money a year than the President of the United States makes. It involves thousands of people of every age. It's called the Waterford Hills Race Track.

Barbra and Robert Krick are two business owners that depend on the income generated by the races. They own and operate a concession stand inside the pits during each race. Other businesses involved range from Rex's Towing to Fleet Ambulance service.

"There's always an ambulance at the track," offered Barbra. "And Rex's does all the towing that needs to be done." The reason for these two services are to assure the drivers and spectators at the race the best possible medical care should an accident occur.

The Krick's began operating their concession stand back in 1969. It was originally operated by the Jaycees in which Robert is a member. The Jaycees had problems getting people to work at the races, so they decided to terminate the concession.

"They asked my husband if he wanted to run it on his own," stated Barbra, "and he said that he'd like to give it a try. And we're still there."

"Among the other businesses involved," says Mrs. Krick, "are all the restaurants, the Sportsman Club, all the party stores and hotels from Waterford to Clarkston." These people (the drivers and their families) when they come into town to race, they have to have this type of service around them. They have to sleep somewhere, eat somewhere and buy somewhere, whether it be film for their cameras or beer. This adds income to both the township and the store owners."

For the past two years, neighbors to the track have voiced their complaints about the race track to the township board, but it is not clear if the township can do anything about the matter, because the track is running on an injunction that was handed out in the 1960s by an Oakland County Circuit Judge.

So again, last week, residents of the surrounding area went in front of the township board to hear what they had to offer.

Richard Kolano was the first to speak. His Blatchford Company was in charge of taking decibel readings at the track more than a month ago. He stated that the noise is over the township's requirement by as many as 35 decibels. The township requirement is 55, and the average noise level that a race car puts out is around 90. He also said that the noise differs from car to car depending on the exhaust system in that particular vehicle.

"They (the township board) requested that we do a survey on the noise problem at the track," opined Mrs. Krick. "It cost the club about two hundred dollars, and they turn around and have Kolano do another test for five hundred dollars, which cost the taxpayers money, and it showed the same results as ours did. I just don't know what the township wants from us. We've done everything they've asked us to do."

Supervisor James Smith then suggested, "I encourage this board to let the noise go, as long as the cars have mufflers on them."

At that point, a member of the Racing Commission said, "When we do get cars on the track without mufflers, we ask the owners and driver of that car to pack up and leave."

But the residents say that there have been several cars racing on the track without them.

The board agreed to let the racing continue for now.

The good news is that car theft is up just a small percentage over previous years. The bad news is that stolen cars are STAYING stolen; the percentage of cars returned is way down.

New cars are being taken "on Order" for resale. But older cars are being stolen for their body parts, which are worth far more than the car itself.

Car owners are fighting back with antitheft devices. Most popular is the ignition and/or hood lock that keeps a thief from starting the car, and a fuel cutoff that keeps him from getting away. Alarms are a further deterrent.

If a determined professional wants your car, say police investigators, he can probably get it. But effective devices will slow him down, and alarms will chase him away.

Fancy combination systems may cost up to $1,000; typical costs for an effective device are $100 or $200.

others spend odd hours doing paper work and other non-public functions.

Mrs. Embry is not one to complain about long or odd hours. She was always willing to work nights and weekends, until lately, when Hibler decided to assign her a regular 9-5 shift.

You can bet Mrs. Embry doesn't arrive to work at 9, however. Most days, she's there at 8, or before, trying to catch up before the check-out counter begins to get busy.

It will be a long time before Mrs. Embry forgets the many pleasant moments and experiences she was involved in at the library. Likewise Mrs. Embry's contributions have left their mark...a mark that will never be forgotten for she truly is the Mother of Independence Township's modern day library.

Pagen Tough to Replace

The successor to Dr. John Pagen as superintendent of Waterford Schools will have to fill some mighty big shoes.

Dr. Pagen who has accepted the position of Warren Consolidated Schools Superintendent has been called a living legend in Waterford. He survived many storms in leading the Waterford system through its most tumultuous times. He did it with eloquent words and determined might. He's done it since 1969, an enviable record of longevity, in an area where superintendents come and go like television anchorpersons.

I first met Dr. Pagen in Lansing eight years ago. I was assisting a Detroit Public School lobbyist. He was making a pitch for school financing reform.

Most residents probably aren't aware of this, but Dr. Pagen probably made some of his greatest contributions as a prominent figure in Lansing. He and former Waterford School Board member Eldon Rosegart were forcefully banging the drums for more financing long before CURE or similar groups made it fashionable.

No doubt, Dr. Pagen will be missed in Waterford. The School Board has a tough task ahead of them in deciding his successor.

area, said "We're going to reduce the amount levied to us."

That, no matter how little it effects the taxpayers, was an honorable gesture. And honorable gestures of the tax cut kind are worth noting in a grand style.

Small Print Saves Money

Independence Township Supervisor James Smith claims if we really want to save the taxpayers some money, we should get behind him and others to get legislation passed eliminating the requirement to publish new ordinances verbatim (see Smith's letter this page).

I disagree because, in my opinion, that would put severe limitations on the public's right to know.

If a government body really wants to save in publishing expenses, a more appropriate and expedient action might be to direct the newspaper of record to use a particular small type size.

All you have to say is body in 8 point and heads in 12 point, and PRESTO, Independence will save thousands of dollars.

Mike Wilcox

SMALL TALK

Tax Reduction is News

Springfield Township Supervisor Collin Walls indicated slight embarrassment over the coverage we gave the township's decision to slash taxes 25 percent.

He needn't be. We gave it front page coverage because no other unit of government in this area has come close to duplicating Springfield's effort.

Granted, only the township portion was cut. And that portion is very small when you consider the overall tax bill. We also realize that reassessments and factors may even make many residents pay higher taxes.

But what was so important about the Springfield tax cut decision was that someone had finally taken a stand. The township, unlike other municipalities in the

by Rebecca Roberts

Instead of my regular column this week, I'd like to offer readers a glimpse of my other self-my poet-self. Here is a poem about the natural course of things, entitled "The Age of Innocence":

"The Age of Innocence"

First, Adam spills the milk, and whatever was being talked about spills too and cools into the heat of us and there we all are, wishing the milk was not now soaking the thick white tablecloth, bacteria already beginning to vie with innocent cells, the rigid structure of milk already going flaccid, the way petals of any flower will. Our voices clatter in the wildness, Adam's voice gets brittle and begins to burst into flame, falling over our shrieks like ash, something alive that has turned soft from consumption. The milk, the tablecloth, Adam's cries that are now like silt at the bottom of a pond, our voices climbing and climbing, echoing the fear of milk, over and over and over the top, the milk now curdled into tough strands of bacteria, irreversible, the odor, like the breakdown of fibres, working its way through us.

whom lengthy presently required verbatim publication has been extremely profitable.

Currently, H.B. 4079 and 4080 are pending in the Michigan State Legislature. They would permit summary publication and in addition require clear, nontechnical language, with each section of each ordinance calling attention to its major points with a headline in order that the average reader might quickly understand the purpose and nature of the ordinance. Under this law, the advertisement would be required to indicate where the ordinance might be read in its entirety and copies obtained. The savings to taxpayers would run millions of dollars a year.

I hope that you will join us and other concerned municipalities in bringing effective savings to the taxpayers through the promotion of this proposed bill, and urge our citizens to write their legislators asking that pressure be put on the Senate Municipalities and Elections Committee to report this bill out for consideration and, hopefully, enactment into law.

Sincerely,
James B. Smith,
Supervisor

Factor Nullifies Decrease

Although we appreciate the fact that you found our Township Board's action to reduce millage news worthy, the headlines could be very deceiving to most township tax payers. The reduction in township millage will not result in a lower tax bill for most township tax payers. Approximately two-thirds of the township tax parcels are classified residential. The State has placed a six percent factor on residential assessments. This increased assessment, when multiplied by the reduced millage, will still result in a tax bill higher than last year.

Springfield Township will collect less money in taxes than last year. Unless school and county millages are reduced significantly, the tax payer will not see the effect of our action. Taxes will be lower than they could have been but not necessarily lower than last year.

Unfortunately, our assessment and taxing system in this State has become almost too complicated to understand. The millage rate is only one of several variables which effect an individual tax bill. Because of the State factor, Springfield Township would have been required to reduce our millage to zero in order to offset the effect of the factor.

Sincerely,
Collin W. Walls
Supervisor/Assessor

Questions Officials

To the Editor:

I read your recent Editorial with regard to the township's alleged failure to protect the local taxpayer's need for honest and intelligent service. I must take you to task, for you indicated that the Gravel Mining Ordinance could of been published on two pages of newspaper space. Now I have sold printing several times in the past fifty years and as a result of that experience, I say it could of easily been published on one and a half pages of newspaper space. Then again, if you wanted to publish it in the same manner as a Bell Telephone Directory, it is quite possible the entire Ordinance could have been published on one half page with a possible slight bleed off.

Did you ever stop to think that perhaps J. Smith had an urgent need to extend benevolence to the paper that published that Ordinance. If you will remember that paper published an Editorial with heavy graphic artillery fire toward closed door meetings of the board and went so far as to indicate or infer there was a possibility of gross departure from ethical conduct of office. Now have you noticed that since the Ordinance was published there is apparently no further disclosure of closed door meetings.

It is almost impossible for me to believe there could be any irregularities in the present administration. We have two men on the board that have the right to recognition and title before and after their names, such as Trustee and Esquire. Also there is Dick Campbell to help keep the ship of State on an even keel. Dick has always been a dedicated individual. He seldom failed. Well maybe one time when he wanted to be a prosecutor of Ordinance failure and run a Booze Joint at the same time.

As I have said, I hope you will try to establish a comprehensive dimension around the activities of our local government.

I really think we could evaluate the effort of our local government as being second to the Nixon administration for healthy, sincere, honest and lawful expertise, in pursuit of opposition. Their intent to produce a well polished appearance and performance has caused me to believe they are using the wrong polish. It could also be beneficial if they changed from the rag they use to a cleaner one.

Hoping you will overlook the homographic indications of this letter.

Sincerely,
Lucky

P.S. I have a little research going, may write another letter soon.

Urges New Legislation

Dear Mike:

Federal regulatory agencies have for too long controlled our lives beyond what their role in government would seemingly allow. Businesses in particular have had to waste enormous amounts of time and resources in meeting bureaucratic red tape spewed out by the current regulatory process.

Legislation such as H.R. 1776, which I am cosponsoring, would require Congress to review Federal rules and regulations for reasonableness and consistency with Congressional intent, and to veto them if necessary.

However, H.R. 1776 and other regulatory reform bills have been blocked from Congressional action for nearly six years by the Democrat leadership. Now we are approaching the close of another Congress and the Senate has passed such needed legislation, but the House continues to take no action. This delay should not be tolerated. The need for regulatory reform is clear, and more than 250 Members of the House--an overwhelming majority--have expressed their recognition of this need by cosponsoring H.R. 1776.

I have joined an effort to bring this bill before the full House of Representatives for consideration by signing a petition to discharge the House Judiciary Committee from further responsibility over this bill. A discharge petition is a serious step, but I believe it is necessary. A total of 218 Members of the House must sign this petition before we can bring the measure to a vote. Please be assured that I will continue to work for the passage of a regulatory reform law.

Sincerely,
William S. Broomfield
Member of Congress

Bad Luck Turkeys Win at Fair

Jack Watson of Holly made many youth happy at the annual livestock auction. He made many purchases including the reserve pen of turkeys. The pen of three large breasted whites weighed 42 pounds. They were sold for $200, then Mr. Watson donated them back to 4-H and they were resold and bought by Earl Floyd of Andersonville Road, Waterford.

In the picture are left to right Wendy Ryan, Nick Mazich and owner of the turkeys Jim Ryan, just 9 years old, of 301 Waldon Road, Clarkston.

This was Jim's first year in 4-H. He bought 10 young turkey poults so that he could have a good selection for the fair. However not too long ago a fox had killed 7 so these 3 were all that was left of his project.

With bad luck and now good luck at the fair Jim is already planning on raising more for next year.

Pre-School Story Time at Independence Township Library is Wednesday, September 1, 11:00 a.m.

Movies for this date are "The Lion and the Mouse", Aesop's fable in which a mouse repays a debt by saving a lion's life, and "Fisherman and His Wife", a film about a poor fisherman who catches a golden fish that grants wishes.

A fascinating book has been added to the junior section of the library. It's "Dinosaurs of North America" by Helen R. Sattler. This title has won the Golden Kite Award given by the Society of Children's BookWriters.

Six non-fiction books reflecting varied interests are now in the adult section at the library. These include: "Sports Illustrated Basketball" by Neil Isaacs; "Encyclopedia of American Cars, 1940-1970" by Richard Langworth; "Real Estate by Yourself" by James J. Hasenau; "Soil Survey of Oakland County, Michigan"; "Comets", reading from Scientific American compiled by John Brandt and "Tanks and other A.F.V.s of the Blitzkrieg Era 1939 to 1941" by B. White.

New adult fiction includes "The Cherokee Trail" by Louis L'Amour, "Wavelengths" by Daniel Klein, "Spence at Marlby Manor" by Michael Allen and "The Arbor Celebrity Book of Horror Stories"

TRIVIA

by Mike Morrow

I put off shopping for new clothes until the old ones disintegrate into a pile of lint in the bottom of the washer. Unfortunately, with the quality of merchandise today, that usually happens in about a month. Unable to avoid it any longer, I fight my way through my local mall.

Along with a flask of whiskey and a bottle of aspirin I carry the following list of rules with me every time near-nakedness forces me to buy new clothes.

1. Be realistic when picking sizes to try on. It is impossible to lose 20 pounds overnight unless both of your legs fall off. Trying to jam yourself into a pair of pants two sizes too small can cause damage not only to your body but to the pants and the changing room if the pants explode.

2. Make sure the fitting room door is securely locked. Don't take the chance of it popping open while you are standing there in your tattered underwear. It's not only embarrassing but could possibly blind innocent people who have the misfortune of seeing you like that.

3. Pay cash whenever possible. Nothing is as depressing as getting a bill for something a month after you have torn, stained, or gotten too fat for it.

4. Clothes bought on sale are not a bargain when no one is surprised at how inexpensive they were (think about that one).

5. If the cleaning instruction tag on the inside of the garment has over three lines of cleaning directions, don't buy it, it will undoubtedly fall apart upon contact with water.

6. The terms "shrinkage controlled" and "color fast" were created by the same person who coined the phrase "honest politician" none of the above exist.

7. Never use the dressing room mirrors to see how the new clothes look, it will only depress you. If it fits without causing dizziness or loss of circulation, buy it.

Even with my helpful list I still hate clothes shopping but it does make it more bearable. Now it ranks just below catching bullets in my teeth as a fun way to spend an afternoon.

The Doobie Brothers, one of rock 'n roll's most successful acts was playing Pine Knob last week, and as they usually do, took time-out to play in a charity softball game at Clarkston High School. The Doobies are expected to retire from the music world later this year.

Youngsters Showcase Reptiles at Park

Collecting reptiles has become a full-fledged hobby for Richard Ashley of Clarkston. Ashley, 14, along with younger brother Joey and neighbor Greg Slattery have a holding pen of snakes, turtles and other creatures that they study and show.

Often they are asked to bring the reptiles over to the Independence Oaks County Park, where, along with Naturalist Kathleen Dougherty, they show youngsters how to feed and care the animals.

FRIEND OF THE COURT

by Roland C. Fancher

In my position with the Friend of the Court, I was recently confronted with a situation where a custodial parent wished to have her child enrolled in a private school. The non-custodial parent opposed the enrollment. The mother wished to know if the father could prevent her from making this arrangement.

In this situation, as the mother had sole custody, the father could not. The legal custodian has the right to make this decision. Suppose, however, that the parties had been awarded joint legal custody?

As you may recall from my article of July 8, 1982, joint legal custody means that the parents share responsibility and authority with respect to the children, and share the decision-making as to education, etc. An award of joint custody assumes that the parents maintain some degree of cooperation between themselves, and their values must be shared to some extent. Where divorced parents cannot communicate with each other as to the children's best interests, or have highly differing values, joint custody is inappropriate. Unfortunately, even where they generally can discuss things concerning the children and usually arrive at a mutual decision, some instances may occur where a sincere disagreement arises and no acceptable compromise is apparent. What course of action remains available then?

I have discussed this problem with several investigators and attorneys at the Friend of the Court who deal with these problems on a daily basis. The opinion that emerges is that there is no uniform or established way to resolve this disagreement. However, several possible options were suggested.

First, the parents may agree to discuss the problem with a third person, for example, a member of the clergy, an attorney, or a counselor. This person may be able to draw upon their experience and offer suggestions which are acceptable to both parties.

Also, the Office of the Friend of the Court may be contacted, and the problem discussed with a staff attorney or investigator. These staff members deal with literally thousands of cases. They may be aware of a solution which worked in a similar situation and which may also work in your case.

When these approaches fail, the aggrieved parent may petition the Court for relief. This may be more expensive and time consuming than the other options, but if desired, the Court will listen to the facts presented and make a ruling. If the problem is significant enough, and the parties vehement enough in their disagreement, the Court may find that the parties no longer communicate well enough as to what is in the best interests of the children. If this is the case, there is the possibility that joint custody will be ended, and sole legal custody of the children could be awarded to one parent.

If you have any questions concerning the Friend of the Court, address them to Mr. Fancher in care of The Reminder. Questions concerning individual cases should be sent directly to the Office of the Friend of the Court.

Hit & Run Victim Critical

Carl Anthony Sackrison, 25, of Detroit was critically injured when he was struck by a car while walking on Clarkston Road between Perry Lake Road and Snowapple Sunday night, August 15.

The driver of the car that struck Sackrison fled the scene before police arrived.

Anyone with any information regarding the accident should call the Oakland County Sheriff's Department Traffic Division at 858-5058.

Poet's Corner

Friends

I knew a man who had two little boys
And his friend who had two of the same.
These boys were their treasures,
their hopes and their joys.
For their sons the friends
wanted fortune and fame.

Now the first man decided that God was the clue
And taught his sons faith,
love and friendship true.
The second man laughed and scoffed at his way.
He said "Money and power,
that's the answer today."
The other man smiled and he was heard to say
"God is our power"
as he turned and went on his way.
Each man raised his sons in the way he thought best.

The years passed quickly with many a test
Of each man's convictions and each man's belief.
And finally one day the men met in grief.
The man who loved power;

his son had gone wrong
And had died for his crime,
his life an unfinished song.
His father was crying,
his eyes filled with tears.

"Where was I wrong
all those many long years?"
His friend whispered softly in words sad and low
"You forgot in your hurry or perhaps didn't know
That God is the answer; he softens the blow.
He helps to raise sons
in the way they should go."

After saying these words that he knew he must say
He turned slowly around and walked sadly away.
