Springfield Votes to Hear Underwood Rezoning Again

by Mike Wilcox

The Springfield Township Board voted to hold a public hearing to discuss a rezoning request by former board trustee Glenn Under-

Underwood is seeking to change his nonconforming Dixie Highway office to commercial zoning so that he can proceed with making improvements on the property.

But the issue is not that simple. Underwood, soon after resigning his township board seat in 1980, brought the rezoning before the board in March of 1980. At that time the issue was tabled after Underwood failed to win approval of the rezoning.

In explaining why he had waited so long to bring the rezoning change up again, Underwood explained, "It (being a board member requesting a zoning change) created a touchy situation. I felt it would be best to let some time pass. But now it needs to be resolved.'

Casting the one lone vote against the hearing, board member Glen Vermilye said the rezoning should be treated as a new request because of the lapse in time, and should be a matter for the planning commission to discuss.

"It's a dead issue at this point in time. I think we are opening up a can of worms due to the time period," said Vermilye.

Supervisor Collin Walls had a different opinion, however. "I think Glenn's service to the township should not be detrimental to him nor should it give him something that isn't available to everyone else. It's a tough

"But ever since I have been on this board and long before, we have attempted to go the extra mile in reasonableness and fairness in dealing with property owners. I think we ought to go with the hearing," said Walls.

On a motion by William Whitley the board voted to hold a public hearing on the rezoning no later than February of 1983. Underwood agreed to pay for advertisements in The Reminder and postage for notifying his neighbors of the hearing. He also agreed to submitting a $200 deposit at the township offices to cover such costs.

In other action the board agreed to hire a contractor to stretch recently installed fence around a swimming pool and two unfinished basements at the Bluewater Bavarian Village on Dixie Highway.

The township had requested the complex to fence the areas some time ago. When they finally installed the fence, Walls claimed it was done so poorly, the area "might be more dangerous than ever."

In explaining the board's position, Whitley noted, "I think we have been more than patient with these people. I think we have to make it safe and charge them for it."

The board also agreed to table any action on Oakland County's solid waste plan. The county is asking all townships to approve their plan to have local governments send all their waste to a yet to be built huge in-

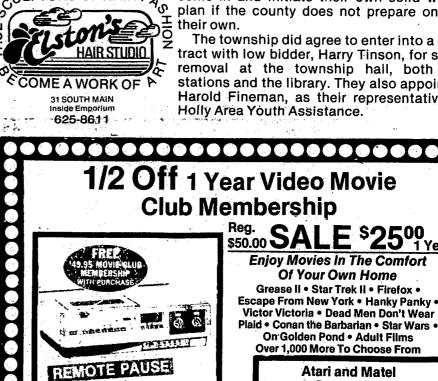

The board voted to table the item because they wanted their township attorney to study the proposed contract.

Walls called the contract a "no win" situation. "There are some real problems with the county plan but I shutter at the thought of a state plan." He was referring to the oft-suggested premise that the state will come in and initiate their own solid waste plan if the county does not prepare one of

The township did agree to enter into a contract with low bidder, Harry Tinson, for snow removal at the township hall, both fire stations and the library. They also appointed Harold Fineman, as their representative to Holly Area Youth Assistance.

Independence Opposes ERES Waste Disposal

by Claudia Brazel

A hazardous waste disposal plant with an accident evaluation plan that over-laps five miles into Independence Township and includes two Clarkston schools, Sashabaw Elementary and Sashabaw Junior High, got got thumbs-down reaction from the Independence Board.

In question, was a decision for support or denial regarding site approval for ERES Company to construct a disposal plant in Pontiac, two and a half miles from the Independence border.

Joining Clinton River Watershed Council and the Oakland County Commissioners in their effort to deny site approval, the Board adopted unanimously, a resolution opposing that approval. The resolution was submitted by Supervisor Jim Smith and additionally amended by Clerk, Chris Rose.

Firmly worded, the resolution stresses the company's inability, in the estimation of the Board, to provide the corporate facilities, assured funding, or demonstrable technological expertise needed to acquire the support and confidence of the Board.

Reviewing Michigan's past errors in judgement, concerning hazardous waste plants and the taxpayers money that had been used to clean-up after companies became financially incapable of continuing their service, the Board chose to unite solidly behind a refusal of the ERES facility site, noting also that application for this particular site had been submitted to the County before.

Adding fuel to the fire an amendment to the original resolution, was the Board's dismayal at the untimely procedure methods utilized by ERES in notifying the Township of its figurative positioning in the matter.

ERES notified Independence Township only ninety days before active decision making policies would be implemented by state and local agencies. In his amendment, Rose noted that those involved in the request for approval would do well to "back-up on their procedures" and stated Township displeasure at the "untimely manner in which we were notified."

Aim to get out of Chapter 11 Pine Knob Proposes Year Around Music

In an effort to bring the entertainment complex out of Chapter 11 bankruptcy, Pine Knob owners Gary Francell and Joseph Locricchio are proposing to enclose the Pine Knob Music Theatre, making it suitable for year-round entertainment.

The Music Theatre, if enclosed, would be the first of its type in the United States. The 11,000 seat theatre would be open to music fans 250 days out of the year, instead of the normal 100.

Pine Knob is currently negotiating with creditors to avoid having bankruptcy Judge George Woods appoint a trustee for the complex. They have until November 30 to come up with a plan that will convince creditors that they can adequately cover the approximately $10 million in debts they owe.

Since February of 1980 when Pine Knobfiled for Chapter 11, they have reorganized its theatre, ski, restaurant and golf operations to reduce expenses and raise revenues.

Those reorganizations haven't been enough, however. Three secured creditors, City National Bank, Citizens Mortgage Investment Trust Co. and Borg Warner Equities who Pine Knob collectively owes nearly $6 million, asked that the court appoint a trustee last month.

Pine Knob hopes that the enclosed musical theatre will make those secured creditors and the court take a second look.

I COULDN'T STAND UP STRAIGHT

John Reeves ≤

My father-in-law told me he had had very similar problem and suggested I go to Rumph Chiropractic Clinic. At that time I told him I didn't want anyone fooling around with my back, until one day about 3 months ago I injured my back at his home. This time I experienced painful breathing along with lack of mobility. My fatherin-law had someone drive me to the Rumph Chiropractic Clinic.

By the time I got there, I required all the help I could get just to walk. The doctor took care of me immediately and after an adjustment and some rest I was able to walk out of the office completely upright with minimal pain.

I have continued treatment to realign my back and neck and have never felt better. Now I would suggest to anyone with similar disorders to give it a shot and go talk to the professionals at the Rumph Chiropractic Clinics.

Oliver Opens Nov. 26

The Birmingham Theatre celebrates the holiday season with the musical hit "Oliver!" November 26 - January 2. Adapted from Charles Dickens "Oliver Twist," it is a tuneful condensation of the starvation to salvation story of that favorite character that can be recommended for the entire family.

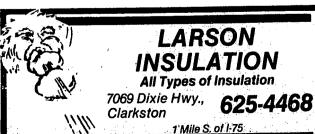

Jack Carter, will play the shamelessly lovable rogue, Fagin, in the production. Shani Wallis will recreate her original film role as Nancy which will give audiences another opportunity to enjoy her rendition of "As Long As He Needs Me", the torch love song associated with "Oliver!".

Toy Display at Center

More than 40 toys to delight the child in each of us will be displayed beginning November 18 through December at Cranbrook Institute of Science, 500 Lone Pine Road.

The new exhibition will combine toy selections from the museum's own collections, which both amused and educated children from various nations, cultures and times, with toys representing the "golden age of playthings."

For more information, call 645-3210.

Joplin Musical at Music Hall

The Michigan Opera Theatre Premiere of "Treemonisha", a musical by Ragtime King Scott Joplin, which opened Friday, November 12 at the Music Hall, and continues with nine performances through Sunday, November 21.

Written and composed by Joplin in the early 1900's, "Treemonisha" is many things, but primarily it is a sweet sermon on goodness. It conveys a significant social message: education is the road to salvation, and it also dips into women's liberation.

FINANCIAL PLANNING FOR THE 80'S

by Ted Lakkides

Now that we've properly arranged everything else we are ready to proceed with INVESTMENT PLANNING. This part of your financial plan can be the most confusing of all primarily because of the tremendous variety of choices available to you. But, here again, there IS a method and a process which we can follow that can help us in arriving at the decision that's correct for a specific situation. At the basis of this process is the fact that there are three facets or groups of characteristics for both the investor and the investment. When the investors three facts match up with the investment's three facets, we have a good investment decision. The three facets are objectives, time frame, and risk. Every investor and every investment can be defined in terms of these three categories.

RISK is the easiest to understand. Yet in most peoples' mind there are only two risk levels -- risky and not risky. The truth is that there are gradations of risk: zero -- low -- medium -- high. And while most investments can be pinned down to a specific spot on this scale, most investors' comfort level is a blend of risk levels. One example would be where an individual is comfortable having 30% of his money in zero risk, 40% in low risk, 20% in medium risk, and 10% in high risk. Every investor regardless of the amount of dollars they have to work with, has his own unique blend of risk levels. And with proper analysis, everyone can identify their risk blend. TIME FRAME has to do with the percentage of your portfolio that you want to allocate to short term investments (up to 12 months) medium term (1 to 5 years), and long term (over 5 years).

Next week we'll cover the most complex facet of the three -- OBJECTIVES.

 Please send your questions on financial planning to Financial Planning for the 80's c/o The Reminder, 6569 Dixie Hwy., Clarkston, MI 48016.

When The Newspaper Calls . . .

It can be especially difficult, in a time of mourning, to answer questions posed by a newspaper reporter who wishes to write a feature obituary about the deceased. We would like to offer a few suggestions to make this experience a little easier.

First, realize the writer is just doing his job, and has no wish to add to your burden. It's likely that he will ask certain facts about the deceased-things like occupation, birthdate, professional accomplishments and the like. Taking a few moments to prepare such information-even if it means asking the reporter to call back when you've gathered the information-will greatly facilitate matters

Also, it's often difficult to talk freely about a departed loved one so soon. You might ask a friend to be your spokesman, and give that friend some of the "vital facts" we have mentioned. Often, it is business colleagues or friends who can illuminate the deceased's personality so his tribute in the newspaper is full of facts-a true tribute, as it should be.

Now that the election is done and over with, there is a lot of talk around Lansing about pay raises. It seems that our state lawmakers, at least some of them are itching to get a bigger share of the state coffers.

Now this doesn't make a whole lot of sense. Already our lawmakers are some of the highest paid in the nation. Amongst Great Lake States they are the highest paid.

And didn't these same fellows ask state employees to take wage concessions. It doesn't seem right that the real workers must accept cuts, and the guys that make the decisions ask for more.

What's really a shame, is that the voting public has no control over what we pay these guys. That's decided by the State Officers Compensation Committee, an appointed board. One of the guys on that board, former State Representative Rusty Hellman, has publicly said he would support doubling the state legislature's pay.

Of course the reasoning goes, if you want a quality government, you must have capable people running it and the only way you are going to lure capable people from private business, is to offer them ore monetarily.

Unfortunately, as mentioned previously, very few states offer more than Michigan.

So how come our government is in such a

by Mike Morrow

The two big trends in doll-making these days are dolls modeled after famous people like Brooke Shields and the Dukes of Hazard and dolls that do everything from burping and eating to things you can't even mention in polite company.

How long can it be before some enterprising toy maker combines the two trends to come up with the following live-action celebrity dolls?

Phil Donahue Doll: Pull his string and he rambles on for an hour giving his opinions and interrupting anyone who tries to speak. A special button on his back releases a stream of hot air out of his mouth when pushed.

John Kelly and Marilyn Turner Dolls: Marilyn's spring-action hand continually brushes the hair out of her eyes and when you pull John's string, he cackles like a hyena and asks silly questions. Both dolls come with a home face-lift kit.

John McEnroe Doll: Comes complete with ten different obscene sayings, permanent pout and a moveable middle finger.

Richard Simmons Doll: Wind this one up and it bounces around the floor until you're exhausted from just watching it. Comes with 32 different jogging suits in various pastel colors.

Bill Flynn Doll: Pull the Channel 2 general manager's string and he insults his employees and says you're fired.

John DeLorean Doll: Pull his string and watch him jump bail.

Richard Headlee Doll: When you pull this doll's string, you're in for a surprise because you never know what's going to come out of his mouth. Each saying is guaranteed to insult at least one segment of the population.

Luke Spencer Doll: When you put Luke's batteries in he gestures broadly, shouts and overacts. Comes complete with over-permed hair and receding hairline.

And you thought "Betsy Bowel Movement" and "Patty PeePee" were bad.

A FREE CIRCULATION WEEKLY NEWSPAPER SERVING WATERFORD, INDEPENDENCE AND SPRINGFIELD TOWNSHIPS

Published every week by The Reminder Zone II Inc., 6569 Dixie Hwy., Clarkston, MI 48016, Phone: 625-9346.

To the Editor:

I am afraid that you must be taken to task for having notice the recalcitrant attitude of some of the alleged leading citizenry of the Historical Village of Clarkston. Now the person that addressed you on this matter is very knowledgeable. She knows your publication needs undressing in this matter.

Honestly, I don't see why the village is so historical because I have been around about half as the village and I don't feel so historical. Maybe a little hysterical. The senile phase of my years is definite and maybe that is part of the problem in the village. Now, this what's her name woman deserves respect for what she has done in the village; if not show a little respect for her age. You know, you could live to be her age and I am sure you will want respect at the time you have accumulated that many decades in history. Besides I have known this fine lady for many, many, many years. She has come a long way. When I first got acquainted with her, she didn't seem to know how to vote at election time even though she ran for office.

History has been established in Clarkston in the past few weeks, with giant strides and giant snow drifts, an alleged $300,000,000.00 before taxes.

Don't you think it would be a good idea for the societies and other groups that scintillate in Clarkston to give some of their time and undying energy to clean the illegal drug pushers and their illegal drugs out of the area? Or do these people live in apprehension of how that action would effect their lots in the local cemetery.

Editor, why did you write anything about that fine gentleman that participated as a culprit in the recent national drug bust? People are coming forward in his behalf. Maybe his defenders believe in drug pushers and drug usage. You reckon if some of his customers in the area die from O.D. of drugs or poor quality of drugs it might change their picture?

To help you understand my thoughts in this matter, may I tell you about an experience my father and I had back in the early thirties. Al Capone hosted my father and I to a lunch. This happened in Chicago on Michigan Avenue just north of Cermack.

We had purchased a sizeable order of batteries at one of his wholesale outlets. Al lived in the area and apparently had no problems with his neighbors. He was a very gracious host aven though a few months before he or some of his executive board used a bomb and machine guns to stop a village argument among the racketeers.

Mr. Editor I hope you survive.

Signed: Lucky Fletcher

Dear Editor:

I have been wanting to drop you a line for a long time to tell you I like The Reminder -- but most of all I like your style Mike!

How many of us have ideas and viewpoints that are closed to the opinions of others? You have a humility and bigness that appreciates the "other fellow" even when he disagrees with your editorial. You come back the next week and credit his criticism. I like that. A more calculating person would sift and sensor (and edit) and conclude with but a "sampling of truth" -- You not only invite criticism but seem to "welcome it with open arms" -- You not only read it -- you feel it -you respond to it and often humbly print publicly that perhaps you should or should not have reacted on something as you had.

The important fact is that you are so very responsive to people. You not only write words -- but you put heart and feeling and meaning to those words by being so compassionate. Not always right -- not always wrong -- but willing to tell it as you see it. I know you have an open door policy for people who disagree with you. Your mind is not closed to your own opinion. You have the genuine ability to respect anothers' views. Being right or wrong isn't always as important as the sincerity that comes through in respecting each other.

We are a small community out here and I think we're lucky to have our little newspaper every week that's just ours and I'm glad we have an editor as fair minded as you are.

I just got a postcard from a friend who is in Hawaii.

The trees outside my window look cadaverous, and the wind is whipping.

The postcard sky is blue-ink blue; a band of smoky purple separates that sky from the land of Maui, where the friend is. The haze of purple is a mountain range far in the distan-

The sky here is moody, dark-fringed.

I hear the rasp of winter around my house, the hustle of final leaves being carried along.

My friend writes that she has been snorkeling..."how beautiful," she says, "with thousands of bright-colored fish.'

The grass here is faded, and what leaves there are, are a pasty brown, with only a hint of the blaze of a few weeks ago. The leaves are pushed into clots around the flower beds, where dry stems spike out of hardening soil.

The postcard hints at scirocco winds, hot tropical air that sweeps along the Hawaiian coasts. There are fifteen-foot waves in Honolulu, says my friend, where they are headed tomorrow. Waves the color of Lapis Lazuli.

In the card, there is green even nature would envy, and a white rim of sand holds back the secretive waters of the Pacific.

I am sifting though adjectives here, trying to come up with some breathless word that will transform the winter I see coming into a Hawaiian dream.

I'm not having any luck.

CHILD You don't think that I love you?

Flesh and blood are not reasons enough? At times, you feel I am distant. Are you asking me whom I love best? I am bigger and have a companion. You are smaller and of three you are one. You wonder, would anyone notice you gone? Are you asking me who to love best? Claudia S. Brazel

Residents Wonder What Brezhnev's Death Means to U.S. - Soviet Relations

by Rebecca Roberts

With the death last week of 75-year old Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, people in high places were asked in television and newspaper interviews for their reactions to the Soviet leader's death. Statesmen, former presidents, and Soviet policy-watchers were asked "What does it mean?"

Former U.S. President Gerald Ford was cornered via telephone in Ann Arbor by ABC's "Good Morning America" host David Hartman. He said that U.S. policy was "in a holding pattern", and then when asked if Ford thought President Reagan should attend the funeral, he responded that, assuming the Soviet's planned a State funeral, Reagan should go.

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, the consummate statesman, said he felt future U.S. policy should be firm while at the same time leaving open diplomatic channels, a policy, he added, not followed in the past.

Nobody said they didn't know, but then, they get paid a lot of money to know, right down to the last hyphen, what to think about world events.

The Reminder wondered what Clarkston and Waterford residents would say if they had an opportunity to be interviewed about Brezhnev's death.

There were four or five that didn't want to discuss it, and one that said I wasn't "his favorite person."

Here's what the rest said:

Clarkston:

Brian Ellico said he "didn't know about it." Brian's 22.

A thirty-three year old woman who didn't want her name used responded this way: "I feel sad when anyone dies--I don't feel happy that he's dead. But I'm wondering what his successor will be like and if (his death) will change our relationship with the Soviet Union."

"Apprehensive," said Irene Eaton, 32, "about what this is going to do with what's left of the U.S.-Soviet relationship. I think Brezhnev had a lot to do with relations between the U.S. and the Soviet Union. As shaky as it's been, I think it could've been worse. There were lines he didn't cross."

Linda Bergeron, 36, admitted she "didn't even know he died," but went on to say, "I hope his death doesn't cause any more world problems. We've got enough to worry about."

Twenty year old Kevin Faught was blunt. "I think it's great," he said, but hurried to qualify that with, "But I just hope the next leader isn't as bad, or worse."

"I'm just wondering if it'll change relations with the U.S. in any way," said Shirley Mercler, 56. Then, referring to the release from prison of Polish Solidarity leader Walesa, an event which occurred the same day of Brezhnev's death was announced, she added, "I wonder if (the fact of Brezhnev's death) has anything to do with Lech Walesa."

Apparently caught offguard by the question, Monie Funck, 45, admitted he "didn't think too much about it."

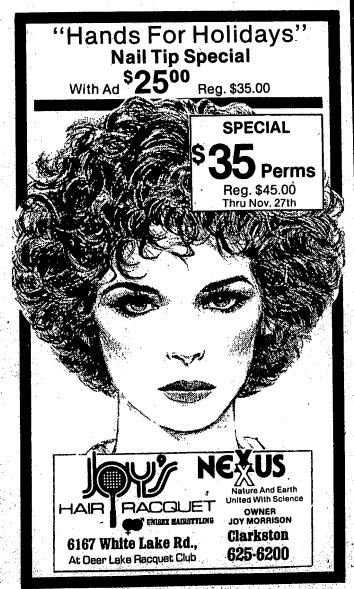

Ron Chovian, 45, a pharmacist at Clarkston Medical Pharmacy, had quite a lot to say, once he got going: "The first thing I think about when something like this happens is our security. My first concern is our country." At first Ron said he didn't think it mattered who ran the Soviet Union, as far as Soviet Policy goes. But then he said he "hoped their outlook" will change along with the leadership, adding that past experience had proven otherwise. Still, he said, "I always hope."

In Waterford and Waterford Township

Kathy McCarthy, 30, observed that, for the U.S., "it's a...frightening and unstable time." She hopes the new Soviet leader "will be more lenient, and that relations (between the two countries) will improve." About the passing of Brezhnev, she added, "I'm a little happy about it."

Linda Teets, who is 38. didn't waste words. "I'm not really into politics, and (Brezhnev's death) isn't important in my life."

An anonymous contributor, a woman of 22, had this to say: "It's a shame the he died, but

SAY YOU SAW IT IN THE REMINDER THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1982 PAGE ELEVEN

I don't think it's going to make any difference to the U.S."

Myrna Laity, 46, was another who said she "didn't know he had died." She wanted time to give a thoughtful answer, said "she didn't know how anyone can determine the outlook on anything like that," without giving it lots of thoughts. "I really don't know how I feel," she said.

A wonderfully straightforward man, all of eight-six, boomed into the receiver, obviously delighted at his chance to make his point, "I don't care for Brezhnev. Who the heck does care for him?" E.J. Arcand then forged on with, "I don't give a damn about any Russians," softening that some with, "except the ones who immigrated to the U.S. and act like United States citizens." Arcand then wondered gleefully whether this public proclamation would make him vulnerable to somebody's, presumably some Russian's, ire.

Karen Belcher, 30, was on her way out the door, but she commented anyway: "I regret (his death). I sure hope the next leader of the Soviet Union is a peace-minded person."

STATE OF MICHIGAN)

COUNTY OF OAKLAND)

On this 11th day of November, 1982, before me personally appeared J. Calvin Walters, the duly qualified and acting Clerk of the Township of Springfield, a Michigan Municipal Corporation, who under oath states that he has read the foregoing ordinance and states that the said ordinance is a true copy of an ordinance duly passed by the Township of Springfield on the 10th day of November, 1982.

thus developed an enthusiastic following in this area.

For his program Sunday Frederickson programmed three sonatas. He opened with the Mozart Sonata in E minor K 304, followed by the Schubert Fantasia for Violin and Piano and ending with the sonata by John Corigliano.

The Mozart was sheer joy, played with all the bounce and clarity that the work demands. It brought to mind in this writer a time some years back hearing the late George Enesco performing Mozart in a recital in Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor.

The Schubert Fantasie, a product of his last years and a very technically challenging work for both piano and violin served as an excellent vehicle for the mature musicianship of both performers.

The texture of the writing and the technical display brings it closest to being a concerto, even though the composer never wrote in that form. Aside from few inaccuracies in the piano, the overwhelming projection of the deeper meaning of the music was carried through.

The final work by John Corigliano served as an excellent climax and contrast to the two earlier classic period pieces. The son of the famous concert master of the New York Philharmonic, John Corigliano has been a rising star in the field of American contemporary composers. The violin sonata presents many rhythmic and technical problems which the Fredericksons proved equal to. He continued unshaken when a piece of the top of his eighteenth century Testori caught by the fron of the bow went flying into the audience.

Ciara Produce Expands to Year Around Hours

Business has been good at the Ciara Produce Outlet. So good, that after three summers, the outdoor produce market at Baldwin and I-75 has gone inside.

That's right. Owner Joe Ciaramitaro and his family have set up shot in an enclosed area at the same location. The heated structure will now allow the produce market to be open all year around.

And that's good news to many who are accustomed to stopping at the market on their way home from work or at other times. They know they can depend on Ciara's to provide the freshest fruits and vegetables possible.

Ciaramitaro has been in the produce business for 35 years. He knows where and how to get the best looking and best tasting foods.

The indoor market carries more than just fruits and vegetables. It's also well stocked with fresh flowers, milk and other dairy products, and fresh baked goods.

Ciara pays special attention to prices. "We offer quality produce at a price you can afford, understates Ciaramitaro.

The market is open Monday thru Saturday from 9 to 7. On Sundays it is open from 10 to 5.

Experience, Personnel Make Hair Inn a Success

Walt and Sandy, owners of the Hair Inn at the corner of Waldon and Baldwin Roads, have just returned from a couple of seminars and are looking forward to practicing their new-found knowledge at their shop.

"The new styles for winter and spring are going to be a combination of three popular cuts --Nova, Shag and Sassoon -- that can be modified to fit almost everyone's lifestyle," said Walt and Sandy.

In addition the salon offers a new product called Sebastian's Cellophane, that the Hair Inn demonstrated at a colour seminar this past week.

"It's a non-peroxide colour that gives the hair shine, body and glowing colour and requires no monthly touch-up. It's a great way to brighten up the winter blahs, claimed Walt and Sandy.

The two have been in the hair business over 20 years apiece. Their Hair Inn emphasizes total family hair care. Emphasis is also placed on manicures, which are fast becoming a popular speciality at the salon.

Keeping up with the latest trends and many years of experience aren't the only reasons the Hair Inn is recognized as a top notch salon. Personnel is always very important and Walt and Sandy are blessed with some of the best.

"All of us are experienced hair stylists that have combined all our ideas and training from working in this business for years, to service the public the best we know how," concluded Walt and Sandy.

New Owners Offer More

Services, Merchandise at Klever Kreations

Klever Kreations is not the newest store on the block, but new owners Mary Pope and Mary Deconinck are energetically breathing some new life into the business in an effort to expand its clientele and services.

The store, which is located on Floradale in Drayton Plains offers a wide selection of cake decorating and candy making supplies as well as silk flowers. In addition Klever Kreations offers classes in a variety of craft specialities.

"We have tried to improve our stock and the quality of our merchandise in hopes of doing this. Now we will be able to serve the public and the community in the best way we know how as a business," said the partners.

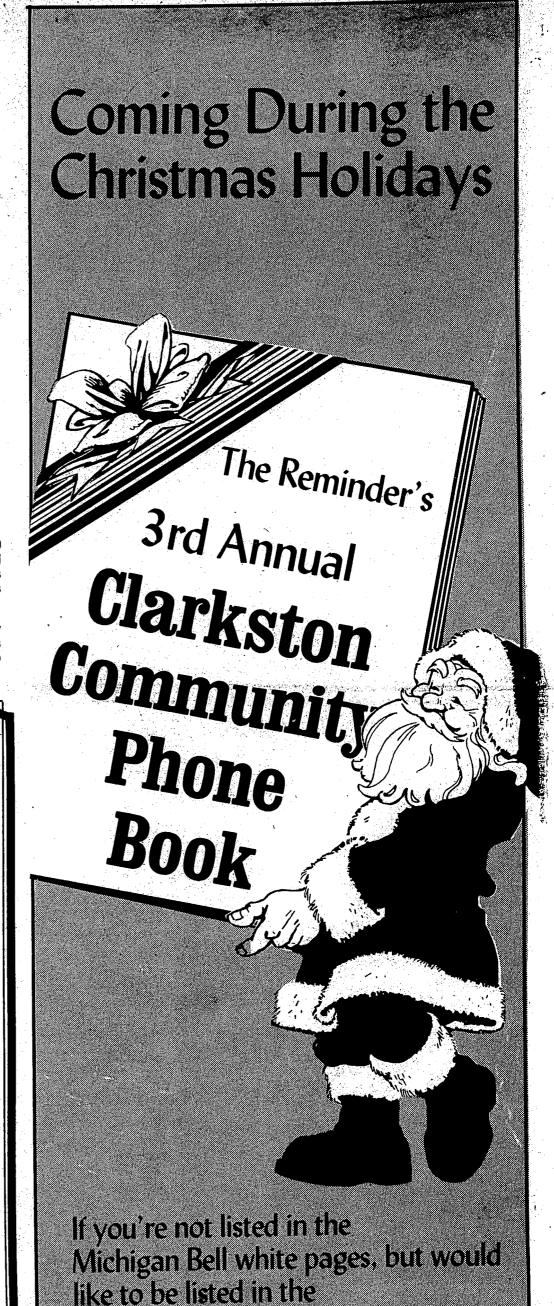

Pope and Deconinck are helped out by Mary's husband Mike Pope, who has been with the Pontiac Police Department for 14 years, and now moonlights as the store's bookkeeper. Other part-time personnel are Michael Pope, Melissa Deconinck...

In addition, the store has retained the services of Elaine Green to teach cake decorating classes. Ms. Green has been decorating cakes for 23 years, 16 years for the Waterford Adult Education Program and six years for Klever Kreations.

Mrs. Pope will be teaching the candymaking and silk flower classes. She also is no stranger to her crafts, having taught candymaking at Klever Kreations for four years, and silk flowers for two years. Mrs. Deconinck, although new to the business is catching on fast and will be teaching fabric frame classes.

The store is open from 10-5:30 Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday. On Thursday the store is open until 9 p.m. and on Saturdays from 10-5.

"We hope everybody will stop by and see our complete selections and low discount prices we have to offer," said the partners.

At 78, Giacalone Fights for Property Tax Reform

by Mike Wilcox

Some guys roll up and die when they retire. Others find a hobby and get totally engrossed in it.

Vincent Giacalone of Springfield Township, a spry 78 years old, turned protestor when he retired. And to this day he continues to challenge our lawmakers over the property

"People don't understand the fundamental basis of our economy. Politicans most certainly don't understand. They don't seem to realize that a lot of people are living on a minimal income," said Giacalone.

A firm follower of tax crusader Robert Tisch, Giacalone is thoroughly disgusted with the two-party system.

"It's not Democracy. The big guys pick out two men, unbekownst to you and I, and promote them. Blanchard was one of those guys and he won't do us any good," predicted Giacalone.

In doing his part to promote Tisch's tax reductions, Giacalone has marched with groups to Lansing and elsewhere. Once in Lansing, he was bold enough to demand an audience with Governor Milliken, unfortunately, for Giacalone, Milliken refused.

That hasn't stopped the Sicilian born immigtant however. Last year, after what he calls the umpteenth time his evaluation has been raised, Giacalone took his case to the Springfield Township Appeals Board. There he got a slight reduction, but in Giacalone's mind, a slight reduction wasn't nearly enough.

He appealed his case to the State and recently was called before a judge to state his case. Giacalone's not sure what the outcome will be but he's somewhat doubtful because he did refer to the State as "a bunch of leeches".

If he wins, Giacalone plans to ask the State to pay him interest on the money he will get back. After all, he claims, they are quick to add interest to money we owe them.

Giacalone may be rebellious when it comes to paying taxes, but one would be hard put to find a truer American patriot. He emigrated to this nation in 1936, shortly before World War II. He remembers memorizing the Constitution verbatim, and to this day is keenly aware of what it stands for

It is the Constitution and America, for which he continues his tax crusade. Giacalone sees our country moving ever so precariously towards Socialism. From there, he sees Communism just around the corner.

"If the government becomes ineffective, Communist ideology will take over, and you can bet, I don't like that," explained Giacalone.

Giacalone isn't always so serious, however. He's forever impersonating his famous namesakes, Vito and Anthony Giacalone, the two Detroit area alleged mafia kingpins, of which Vincent is no relation.

He also spends a great deal of time with his wife, dancing and playing cards at the Waterford CAI. The two are members of the CAI Golden Ages (Vincent is former vice-president).

Of the organization Giacalone candidly says, "It breaks up the monotony at home. It allows people to get out and see other people."

For Giacalone that seems rather unnecessary. For life after retirement, at least in his case, seems to be busier than ever.
