Financial Planning for the 80's

by Ted Lakkides

One of the most frequently used legal instruments in complete financial planning today is the Self Trusteed Living Trust also known as the Revocable Trust. There are three main reasons people choose a Living Trust over a Simple Will. a) To avoid probate costs, delays and publicity in settling the estate. While maximizing the value of the estate that the family keeps. b) To protect the estate from being mismanaged and squandered, and that the family's needs are properly taken care of. c) To maximize the use of the Federal Estate Tax Shelters, via which a significant portion (if not all) of most estates can pass to the next generation ESTATE

Now, the process of setting up a trust for your family is not nearly as complicated as it used to be. Because of their popularity most attorneys are familiar with their drafting. So once you have developed a financial plan and have decided how you want this financial plan to continue in the event of your death, the attorney can easily draft the proper document to guarantee that your plans for your family continue. One of the frustrating aspects of my work is the negative picture some people have about trusts; a picture that's formed from misconceptions and misinformation about trusts. In reality a trust can be made (and should be in most cases) as flexible as possible for the surviving family to operate.

One key point: as long as the person who created the living trust is living, the trust has absolutely NO EFFECT on anyone or anything. So a person can set up a living trust with the facility to periodically change the document's provisions to reflect changes in personal objectives, legal provisions, family circumstances, or assets. In this way the Trust will always be in a position to continue your most recent financial plan for your

by Mike Wilcox & Al Wieling

Christmas could have been a disaster for the Tom Walker family of Andersonville Road. But thanks to a smoke detector and some good fortune the family is safe, alive and together.

They very well could have all been dead, or at the very least separated for Christmas of 1982.

On the night of December 13, at approximately 3 a.m. in the morning, Tom Walker was awakened by the smoke detector he had just put new batteries in a couple of days earlier. The detector was signaling that the house was on fire and Walker wasted little time in rushing his family outside.

"We had the alarm at the base of the stairs," recalled Walker. "The smoke had just started up the stairs. I heard the alarm and immediately began to grab the kids."

"If it wasn't for the smoke alarm, we would have been dead because the smoke would have gotten us," said Walker.

He added, "Last Tuesday I had just bought a battery for the alarm because it hadn't worked for a month. I kept saying I was going to fix it. Thank God I did."

The fire was fought by the Springfield Township Fire Department with the assistance of Independence and White Lake Townships.

According to Assistant Springfield Fire Chief Elwyn Hillman the fire started in a closet in the kitchen. At this time the cause is unknown.

"If he had not put new batteries in the smoke detector, five minutes more and the family may have lost their lives or a great deal more of their house," said Hillman.

One near casualty was the family cat. It

Minister and Motorcycle Gang Head Off Eviction

Patient-Will Spend Christmas at Home

by Mike Wilcox and Al Wieling

Christmas has come early for Ruth Chandier.

Mrs. Chandler, who has terminal cancer, was expecting to be evicted from her Airport Road apartment this week because she had fallen behind on her payments.

However, a minister and a motorcycle gang have found the financial resources necessary to get Mrs. Chandler a reprieve.

The minister, Mike Biskner, has been doing everything he can for the last week to find Mrs. Chandler some help.

"Her daughter has been staying up all night in tears just because she has a fear that something is going to happen to her mother, or that they are going to be put out in the cold," said Rev. Biskner.

Before discovering that she had cancer, Mrs. Chandler worked at a nursing home.

"I did all the sorting and washing. I ran the washing machines," said Mrs. Chandler. "They (the nursing home) finally made me go to a doctor because I hadn't been in 15 years. They found out that I had cancer of the colon and it was bad."

The mounting hospital bills have been impossible to pay. Mrs. Chandler has used some of her welfare money to pay them and thus has come up short when it has come time to pay the rent and utilities. She currently owes $447.

"I am on ADC," explained Mrs. Chandler. "It has been pretty hard, I have to admit that, but I have trust in the Lord."

"I told my daughter while I was in the hospital that I would not go on welfare. I was going to get out of the hospital and go back to work," claimed Mrs. Chandler.

But it was not to be. Although only 40, Mrs. Chandler has been operated on twice, but the cancer continues to spread.

"They told me that I have about a year to live, but I ain't going anywhere yet. I ain't through living yet," proclaims Mrs. Chandler.

But she might have been through living at her Airport Road apartment. Because of colossal misunderstandings between Ms. Chandler, caseworkers, ADC, medicaid and her landlord, the terminally ill cancer patient may have been living on the street if it weren't for the Kings Kids.

The King's Kids are a motorcycle gang, or as they would say, a motorcycle ministry based in Detroit. Rev. Biskner informed them of Mrs. Chandler's plight and they in turn called the 700 Club television show and had a Christmas Pary in her honor.

From the 700 Club plea for help came an anonymous donor who visited Mrs. Chandler.

"He called and came over and he sat and talked for a while," said Mrs. Chandler. "As he got up to leave he flipped me 2 one-hundred dollar bills and said 'maybe this will help you.' He wouldn't tell me his name,"

At the King's Kids Christmas Party a donation was taken for Mrs. Chandler and lo and behold another one hundred dollars was given to her

From the beginning her faith has been undaunted. Even when she received the eviction notice, Mrs. Chandler noted the Lord would bring her through.

"Like I told you," she says, "the Lord sees you through things like this. You have just go to have faith. I have lots of faith and now I am back on my feet again."

Chiropractic Got Me Walking Again

Raymond Ball, Ortonville

When I first came to the Rumph Chiropractic Clinic, I had real bad low back pain and pain down my leg. Most of the time the pain was so bad I could hardly walk or move around. It really interferred with my daily routine.

My brother had been to the chiropractor before and he told me how the treatments had helped him. So I started going to the Rumph Chiropractic Clinic. The doctor told me I had a derangement of a disc in my low back.

After two treatments I started to notice some improvement. Now I feel much better and I'm able to move and walk about more freely.

Chiropractic treatment has really helped my low back and I've also noticed a lot of improvement in my neck and shoulders.

I really feel good.

Please Help Us Make The Reminder Better

The Reminder would like to make one very important resolution for 1983. That is to make it a whole lot easier for our readers to get their community news and announcements in The Reminder.

To achieve this we have appointed Claudia Brazel as our Community Editor. Her charge will be to assemble a staff of neighborhood informants who will feed her information each week about the happenings taking place in their particular areas.

The goal of course is to make The Reminder a better and more informative newspaper. Our emphasis has always been unabashedly placed on local news and people, and we hope through this neighborhood network that we can bring you even more local news.

We can't do this alone, however. We need help - particularly volunteers who would be willing to keep their eyes and ears open, sit down and call a few neighbors up once and a while to obtain information and then turn around and call up Claudia on a weekly basis to let her know what is going on.

We eventually would like to have a correspondent in each of the subdivisions and neighborhoods the Reminder circulates

We can't offer you a large salary, nor can we offer you lots of glory. But we will offer you ample credit, a byline when the story is a major one, and the satisfaction that you would be helping your community obtain much needed information. Please call Claudia at 394-0207 if you feel you can be of

by Roland C. Fancher, Esq.

The Friend of the Court Act, Public Act No. 294 of 1982, establishes a new system to attempt settlement of custody and visitation disputes. This procedure will be called domestic relations mediation, and will come into use beginning July 1, 1983, the effective date of the new legislation.

Persons acting as mediators will be required to complete special mediation training to be established by the soon to be created Friend of the Court Administrative Bureau. In addition to this training, a mediator must have a) a license to practice psychology, b) a master's degree in counseling, social work, or marriage and family counseling, c) not less than five years of experience in family counseling, d) a graduate degree in behavioral science and completion of 250 hours of practical experience working under the direction of a person who has successfully completed a program certified by the Bureau, or e) membership in the State Bar of Michigan.

Parties will not be required to meet with a mediator. However, if a custody or visitation dispute arises, they must be advised of the availability of this service. If they agree to mediation, they will meet with a qualified person to negotiate settlement of the custody or visitation dispute. If settlement is reached, the Friend of the Court attorney or a private attorney must prepare an order incorporating the terms of this agreement, which will be entered by the Court. If no agreement is reached, the matter proceeds to hearing before a judge or referee, as in a case where mediation was not used.

The above procedure is intended to speed resolution of custody and visitation matters. Whether it will accomplish this purpose is unknown, and will likely vary from case to case. A burden will be placed upon private counsel to predict whether the competing parties can discuss their disagreement in a reasonable and rational manner with a fair chance of out of court settlement. However, if hostile feelings run high, the mediation session will merely provide a forum for bitter accusations, and create more ill feelings than had existed before. If the parties sincerely wish to resolve their disagreements in a reasonable manner, and are not using the legal process as a method to punish or harass the other party, mediation can work and avoid the need for a court hearing.

It is not clear whether mediation will be handled by the Friend of the Court or by an outside source. This must be determined by July 1, 1983 when the new system goes into effect.

If you have questions regarding the operations of the Friend of the Court, address them to Mr. Fancher c/o The Reminder. Questions regarding individual cases should be sent directly to the Oakland County Friend of the Court.

Just in case some of you out there haven't bought that special gift for your favorite humor columnist (no, not Erma Bombeck, me) here are a few suggestions.

- A car window defroster that works. I'm sick and tired of seeing the world through a frosty haze.

- A typewriter that doesn't have an E that sticks and doesn't bounce half-way across the room when I type.

- A diet that works and still lets me eat pizza and potato chips.

- A head of hair that doesn't look like steel wool and doesn't snap combs in half.

- A pair of socks without holes so big that it's anybody's guess where the foot is supposed to go in.

- A sinus cavity that doesn't fill and drain every twenty minutes.

Kidneys that can hold more than two teaspoonfuls of liquid.

Money. At least enough to pay off my J.C. Penney's bill (don't ask, it's frightening).

- A months worth of funny, legibly typed, grammatically correct, columns (this could also double as a rare gift to my editors).

A vacation in Bermuda. Flat Rock has lost its charm as a vacation spot.

A wallet that hasn't been through the washer 5 times. - Nail clippers that haven't been used to cut everything from thread to wire. Bob Talbert's spot in the Free Press (why not? he doesn't use it).

- A new snow shovel and someone to push it. A mouth that doesn't always say the wrong thing at the wrong time. - New bed pillows that don't have the softness and thickness of a saltine cracker. - An electric razor that actually cuts hair.

- Underwear with elastic.

- At least one dress shirt without grease stains or cigaret burns.

Well, I'll settle for a card. Merry Christmas everyone!

Christmas. The very sound is crystilline,

How do we manage, every year, to do it? To have Christmas?

It's one of those things, it seems, one of the forces in our lives that comes unbidden. It's here. It just happens.

Every year, it happens the same way. Around the end of November, I begin to hear it breathing, like a small animal in the dark, something unnamed, alive; and with time and the imagination, it takes on increasingly larger proportions.

By December first, I see it, a visible, though amorphic, presence that has begun to rearrange us, our priorities. Like crystals, we begin to collect the mysterious, complex designs of Christmas. For me, if Christmas were a color, it would be the color of ice that strange blue, transluscent, that glazes the snow on a late December afternoon.

By mid-December, Christmas is all sight and sound. And smell. The thick piney smell of downtown holly-trimmed streets, people crowding each other and for once not minding the crunch all that much; the wild clang of the bells calling us to the mood, insistent.

And the songs. Oh, the songs. It is the Christmas songs that most make me yearn for a voice. Having not been so blessed, I content myself with the choraling of others.

In the songs, all the world is rejoicing, dreaming, resting, loving, laughing.

The lights of Christmas seem eternal. They flash and shine, flickering on into nights that are so cold, they seem tangible. As always, this year they doodle across the landscape, inscribing the night with color.

It is enchanting, this holiday. Like no other, it harbors a beginning.

With all the distracting bric-a-brac — the computers, the video games, the decorating paraphenalia - Christmas itself comes unadorned.

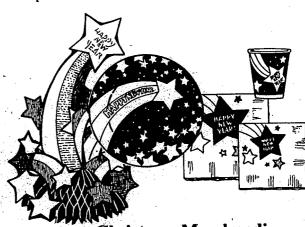

Video games, like Monopoly and mini-bikes, will pass, replaced with something glitzier, costing more, meaning not at all

But beneath all that, there is this thing, this unbidden spirit, that clamors up out of nowhere, and comes to us, a story, a myth, a truth not yet found in the aisles of Hudson's or Sears.

Citizen Participation Tops Township Lists

Township government reporter Claudia Brazel asked four Independence Township elected officials to reveal what's on their Christmas Wish List. Here's what Chris Rose, William Vandermark, Dale Stuart and Larry Kozma had to say:

Chris Rose - Clerk

Chris Rose, Independence Township Clerk, has been a resident of Clarkston all his life, attending Clarkston Elementary and Clarkston Junior and Senior High Schools. Chris completed his education at the University of Michigan-Flint where he majored in his first love, history.

Chris's wife June would seem the perfect choice as her father was Township Supervisor for many years in Cotraville, Michigan. Chris and June are preparing to celebrate their 11th Anniversary soon. They have two children.

Asked about his hopes and wishes for the Township and its future Chris expressed a desire for Township definition of specific plans for growth.

Similar to other Board members, Chris has an appreciation of the Township's past record of orderly and logical growth and hopes it is adhered to in the future:

Another hope is to widen the Township's tax base by seeking "abstract" enterprises. Chris places emphasis on technological products and services and small business as ways of expanding the tax base, by-passing industrial and heavy commercial prospects that can decrease, greatly, the environmental benefits and social structure presently enjoyed by Township residents.

Environmental excellence, in Chris's mind is of extreme importance to this community.

Chris's last wish was for increased citizen participation, a request shared by several board members, because in his opinion high citizen participation helps to bring about the best possible solutions to the many questions and problems that arise within local governing bodies.

Dale Stuart

Township Trustee, Dale Stuart is an attorney with partnership in the firm Murphy, Kimmel, Stuart by day; and a husband of 20 vears and father of four every minute of every day. Born and raised in the Pontiac area, Dale and his wife Debbie settled in Clarkston six and a half years ago, choosing this area for it's natural beauty and desirable community structure.

Dale graduated from Detroit College of Law after acquiring a degree in business first. It was a much respected professor of Dale's that encouraged him to consider law as a career and Dale says he has never regretted that choice.

Dale has been active in many community services and dedicates much of his time to maintaining a solid family unit. He recently resigned his position on the Planning Commission in order to fulfill the many obligations of home, family and profession and to allow another board member the opportunity to serve in that capacity...

The first matter of importance to Dale is the hope that the Township, through its citizens and officials, would not lose sight of why people moved here.

Aware that there are multiple approaches to attending a singular goal, Dale suggests that vigilance toward understanding what the Township is and what makes it desirable to people will do much to unify efforts and increase the opportunity for success.

This philosophy leads to another hope for the Township's future by Dale and that is that citizen participation will increase substantially. Dale would like to see more citizen opinion expressed in person at Board Meetings or even by U.S. Mail, adding his belief that when officials representative of the people are made aware of their consitituents problems, concerns, opinions and ideas, it helps to formulate a more realistic approach to development.

Another item on Dale's Wish List is for township, state and federal governments to run as efficiently and business like as possible, spending as they need to and not as they would like to.

Dale is a firm believer that any governmental entity should run lean, state governnment is not an end in itself.

Larence Kozma

Larry Kozma is a family man who speaks remarkably well of excursions to the drive-in with his two children and wife as well as other planned activities with the family.

Because of Larry's love of family he states simply that his view of the future for the community he lives in is most naturally the view of his children's future. An attorney within the Oakland County Prosecutors Office, Larry maintains a commitment, both at home and at work, to traditional American values. He became a Trustee because of that

Being initially only a concerned citizen without public forum Larry found it difficult to apply his personal values to issues of concern within his community while remaining 'outside' of the system governing it. Taking the bull by the horns he acquired the needed signatures on petition that would allow him to run for Board office. As we know today, Larry was successful in that bid for election.

Prior to his election Larry held concern for Pine Knob issues, finding some Township response to the problem weakening the ability of Independence to qualify and execute its own determination of growth.

Now, in his position as Township Trustee, Larry hopes to do his best in representing the people of his community.

Realizing that you can't please everybody all the time he makes every effort to completely inform himself about township issues feeling this can best be done by listening to the citizens he serves and keeping himself up-to-date.

Larry's hope for the future of Independence Township is a continuation of growth in a stable and orderly fashion with an increase in citizen participation. Citizens involvement is a necessity in Larry's view of government, helping to keep government bodies in tune with the needs of the population it serves.

William Vandermark

Bill Vandermark, Independence Board Trustee, father of two boys and husband of Jeannette for 16 years is out-going, affable and open to suggestions and opinions from the citizens of the community he serves.

Born and raised in Royal Oak, moving to Rochester and finally settling in Clarkston 11 years ago, Bill Vandermark is loyal to the Township of Independence and dedicated to serving its best interests.

Attracted to Clarkston because of its natural beauty and close proximity to Systemation where he used to work, Bill has chosen to dig in and become a part of the community in which he lives.

Presently employed by Borg-Warner, the Vandermark's are closely knit and maintain a fairly low profile in order to capitalize on family time.

Bill's identical twin brother was Independence Township Supervisor for a term and a half prior to becoming Chairman of the State Tax Commission. Bill, in fact, became most active in his brother's campaigns and was enticed by the political availibility to get things done, sort of. Participating in school and homeowner associations also convinced him to seek a position of means whereby he could accomplish something.

Bill was in the service for two years and five years ago he spent six months in Russia. The stay in Russia completely reaffirmed. Bill's strong belief in Democracy.

On Bill's list you will find a wish to maintain Independence Township's atmosphere of quality and it's strong characterization of being a desirable place to live and raise a Planned growth and attention to details that make living worthwhile are Bill's wishes with importance placed on citizen involvement within their government. Bill feels there is a desparate need for more, much more, participation by citizens in all government levels.

No One Makes Candles Better

June Hutchinson has been making candles at the Davisburg Candle Factory for nearly 20 years. She has worked under 4 different owners and is considered one of the best candlemakers around.

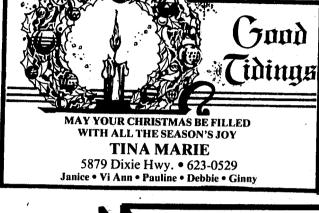

Barbara Johns, present owner along with Pam Regurella, calls Mrs. Hutchinson a master. "Some of it is art, and other is craft, but if you watch what June does it is definitely art. A lot of people do canart," said Mrs. Johns.

Reminder reporter Al Wieling recently talked with Mrs. Hutchinson about her art and the Davisburg Candle Factory. Her story is below:

Reminder - When did you start making candles?

Hutchinson - I have worked for the Candle Factory since September 3, 1963. I started with the original owner Charles Going when the factory was on the corner of Dixie Highway and Holly Road. I worked there for several years and then we moved to Davisburg in the factory here until it burned in December, 1969. Then we moved back to the Dixie in what is now Nanjo's temporarily until we could get the building we are in now. We have been in this building since 1970.

Reminder - What got you interested in working in a candle factory?

Hutchinson - They needed help and I was ready to go to work because my daughter had gone from the home and I had extra time

Reminder - Are there any special types of candles that you like to make?

Hutchinson - I run the taper line and I do the molded candles . . . the animal candles. I keep all the paints filled to make colors.

Reminder - Is there a special time of year that you enjoy more than others?

Hutchinson - What I like best is creating new designs and things. I like the business of the Christmas season, all the hussling around that goes with it.

Reminder - Does it take an artistic type person to make good candles?

Hutchinson - I think that some make candles better than others.

Reminder - You have a lot of homemade machinery here. How does it work?

Hutchinson - One machine is the tapers. It was designed by original owner Mr. Going, and has bicycle wheels and roller skate wheels and is like a Rube Goldberg thing. It takes the candle wicks down and dips them in the wax until the candle is formed. It takes 25-30 dips to build a candle up to the right size. It takes 71/2 minutes to make a complete trip to get back to the wax dip.

It is around a 4 hour process to make one candle. We can make 176 pairs of candles in one process. The machine can go forward and backwards. If we'were to run it in the same direction all the time we would have one flat side and one rounded side. It has a sweeping motion.

In the basement we have a hydraulic press. We have several dies that fit it to make different shapes like Santa Claus and animals. We also have an oven that keeps the wax soft like play dough and we weigh it and place it in the press under 200 pounds pressure and it presses out whatever is on the die.

Reminder - You use wax that is very hot. Have you ever been burnt bad?

Hutchinson - No. Nothing more that what you would get in a kitchen. But we have to be very careful so that nobody bumps you when you are working.

Reminder - How do you color the candles? Hutchinson - Everything is white when we make it. We have to color them afterwards. We have 31 different colors to choose from. We have big supply tanks in the back for making colors which are made with powdered dyes that are oil soluble. We have formulas like recipes so if you come back and want a candle of the same exact color we can make it.

Giving presents at Christmas is fun. Can you think of another way to show someone you like them? Students from Pine Knob Elementary were asked this question.

You can ask them to go to the movies. Ask them over to your house. Give them a flower. Give a ride on your bike - Lisa Jones, 3rd grade.

Love them. Help them do things. Invite them to your Christmas party. Smile at them. Hug them and love them. Laura Garlitz, Grade 3.

Give them a birthday present. And you can give them a Christmas card. You can kiss them, they will think you like them. You can go bike riding with them. You can take a walk together. That's liking someone. Angela, Grade 3

Colombiere Programs Won't Be Effected by U of D Expansion

Rev. John E. Dister, S.J. Director of Colombiere Center since 1979, congratulated Rev. Robert Mitchell, S.J., President, and the University of Detroit on its choice of Colombiere Center for its first extension campus.

"I feel certain that it will turn out to be for the good of both University of Detroit and Colombiere in the long run." However, in the light of rumors that have circulated in the Oakland County area in recent years about Colombiere's future, Dr. Dister was anxious that there be no misunderstanding in what is happening to Colombiere.

"It is very important to understand," he said, "that there are no changes in any of the programs currently in place at Colombiere, with the exception of the number of the people that we can accommodate for weekday conferences between September and April. Our usual conference bookings, the programs and retreats sponsored by the Center for Lay Spiritual Growth, the Insight at Colombiere Substance Abuse Program, are all remaining in place for the foreseeable future."

Ms. Shannon Barnes, Coordinator of Programming for Colombiere, pointed out that the programming and retreat team is already considering ways in which its activities, and particularly the programs of the Center of Lay Spiritual Growth, could be linked up with continuing-education aspects of University of Detroit's extension at Colombiere.

Some of the things that the programming team are discussing for possible later cooperation are an institute in the summer of 1984 co-sponsored by the University of Detroit and Colombiere Center, on the "Place of the Lay Person in the Church Today" and adult religious education programs.

Other members of the team for Lay Spiritual Growth include Sr. Peggy Schmidt, IHM, Rev. Salvino Briffa, S.J., and Rev. Joseph Sommer, S.J.

Independence Township Clerk, Chris Rose had a touch act to follow when he appeared before the Clarkston Board of Education to represent the Township Board in it's request for participation in a road paving project.

The Township request followed a plea for physical education programming in elementary grades that will remain unactivated due to lack of funding.

In question was the much desired paving of Pine Knob Road near Clarkston Road, where Bailey Lake Elementary is located.

Doris Mousseau, Principal of Bailey Lake, has expressed concern for her students' safety. She initiated communications regarding the matter with both the Oakland County Road Commission and the Township Cost estimates have recently decreased from previously estimated costs of well over $100,000.00 to a more tolerable sum of around $80,000.00.

Neighbors in the immediate Pine Knob-Clarkston Road area were in attendance to visibly strengthen their support of School Board participation. The general feeling expressed by those citizens was that school use of the road was in a large way responsible for the road's poor condition.

Although board member's individually sympathized with those using the road and it's poor condition the general consensus emerged that school funds were intended to educate rather than pave.

Decision on the matter was postponed. It will automatically become inactive without response since the Township Board timetables demanding participation with the County require decisive action within a period of about a month.

No Movement on CEA Contract

Bartlett, President of Clarkston Education Association, recently restated the Associations hope for a swift and conjunctive settlement of contract differences between C.E.A and the Clarkston Board of Education.

Bartlett also announced a January 7, 1983 re-entry date, for Board and Association negotiations.

Those discussions will include participation of an agreed upon Fact-finder but will not require adherence to any binding fact finding determinations by either party.

Meanwhile, Clarkston teachers (C.E.A. members) continue to work without a contract and Board of Education members still are battling the budget as revenues continue to decline and community educational needs Citizens Push for Elementary Phys. Ed.

by Claudia Brazel

The Physical Education Committee, composed of nine members of Clarkston's professional educators, conducted an in depth study of the effects and relationships of physical education in elementary grade levels.

The committee of seven teachers and two principals placed their findings before the Board by way of Leonard Lovelace, committee spokesman.

In consultation with Michigan State and Wayne State Universities; it was mentioned by their personnel that Clarkston may hold historical significance in that it has no P.E. program existing in the elementary schools of it's system.

According to both University staffs (Health and Physical Ed.), Clarkston is maintaining a physical education program that should be reversed with elementary levels being given first priority. It seems that early physical education produces superior results.

Both universities also stressed the importance of professionally trained instructors but stated that a non-professional volunteerbased program was better than nothing at

All things considered the committee came to a unified decision that physical education in elementary levels is a desirable quality in the total education of a child.

Also stated by the committee was the intent that such an educational program should not, however, financially cuttinto existing educational programs of importan-

Carol Zorka, Nancy Deloney and Jean Molzon, physical education parent volunteers, were on hand to hear a committee report on physical education before the Clarkston School Board.

Zorka, Deloney and Molzon are involved with program implementation and program proposals before the board.

Zorka spoke of empathy for the Board's increasing financial difficulties, stressing that it was not her intent to pressure but only to inform, and seek priority consideration of the P.E. problem. SHE ASKED THAT THE Board consider:

1. Individually responding to their own desirability for a P.E. Program.

2. To place elementary P.E. on the educational priority list. (It has not been on since it's removal after millage failure 1977)

3. Re-activate P.E. Committee.

4. To set a goal in form of a projected target date.

Board Members responded thusly:

Addison Hubbard - was very positive remarking that his own sons were pressuring him to support the physical education program.

Vincent Luzi - expressed that P.E. was important and support proposals seemed reasonable. Also, Clarkston's standing in comparison to other districts was far too low in his opinion.

Mary Jane Chaustowich - stated that a decision of priority placement would be made from a total package of curriculum considerations and projected the plausible inclusion of P.E., adding that the state legislature would most likely determine the target date.

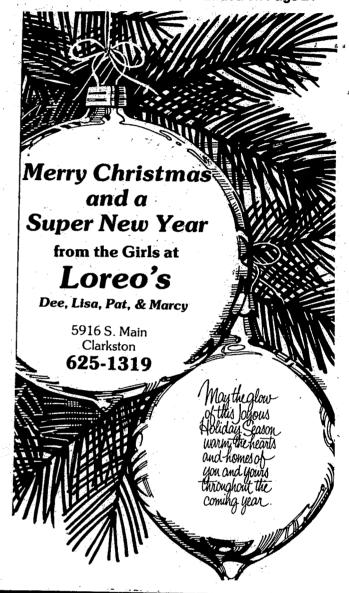

Fernando Sanchez - Regarded the physical education of a child as a parental charge and a chance for parents to become close to their children. He expressed the belief that parents can accomplish as much as the schools can in this form.

Dr. Stephen Werner - found the concept of an elementary P.E. Program favorable but expressed the concern that school districts will lose existing programs before new ones can be implemented.

Carolyn Place - was very clear in her position issuing a plea to stop short changing kids in Clarkston. She expressed the feeling that the P.E. program should receive top priority and be placed in impor-

Firefighters battle Andersonville Road blaze from the rooftop of the Walker home.

After the fire, The Walkers had a new problem - where to live. The house was not an option because smoke had damaged the interior to a great extent. Yet, it was the Christmas season and Walker wanted his family to experience Christmas together.

After living several days with relatives in the area, the family found an apartment where they all could live together.

Instead of a disaster, it may be the happiest Christmas of all for the Walker family.

tance, alongside reading and math in a child's education.

Janet Thomas - acknowledged that the backward approach to physical education had always concerned her but could not estimate, at this point in time, as to program implementation in Clarkston due to financial restrictions.

Zorka also worried that in the meantime, as the economy fluctuates, our children will be suffering while we wait for professional instruction.

Because of this, Zorka felt the matter of physical education in the elementary schools should be placed high on the system's priority list and that the Physical Education Committee be allowed to further investigate and organize a proper program for Clarkston so that immediately, as funds become available, the program could be implemented.

Students Demonstrate P.E. for Board

Lorna and Dave Kithil were among a group of citizens who enjoyed a demonstration of physical fitness skills by students from Clarkston Elementary prior to the Clarkston School Board Meeting.

The students enthusiastically displayed the positive outcome a physical education program can have, regardless how restrictive the facilities, staffing or financial aide may be Clarkstons P.E. Program is conducted by Parent Volunteers of which Lorna is one. The Kithills son Steve was one of the P.E. enthusiast participating in the evenings demonstration.

A variety of new books have been added to the library in the past weeks. They include: Four books concerned with health and nutrition - Fast Vegetarian Feasts by Martha Shulman, Introduction to Nutrition by Henrietta Fleck, The diabetes Fact Book by Theodore G. It happens every night to some of your very best friends. They go out, have a few too many drinks and then drive their car.

Of course, they've done it many times before. Matter of fact, they've probably told ou they're better drivers after a few Booze does that. Makes them think they can do anything. But what it really does is slow reaction time. Blurrs vision. Blows away common sense. Suddenly, they're not drivers anymore. They're menaces.

After a few minutes, they'll be doing eighty, eighty-five. They couldn't stop if they wanted to. But this time they'll be lucky. They're going to see some big red and blue flashing lights. That's us.

We're part of a Special Alcohol Enforcement Team and we're patrolling their favorite stomping grounds. You see, we know all about them. Where they drive. When they drive, And we can spot them a mile away.

After we've introduced ourselves, we'll introduce them to one of our judges. They're crazy about drunk drivers. They know that last year alone drinking drivers caused over 6,000 accidents, 4,500 injuries and almost 100 deaths in Oakland County.

It's going to be a rough night for them. Even a rougher morning. So here's a message for your friends; "We're out there waiting and we'll be behind you all the way."
